

Lucia Tajoli
Dipartimento di Ingegneria Gestionale
Politecnico di Milano
Piazza Leonardo da Vinci 32, 20136 Milano, Italy
lucia.tajoli@polimi.it

Academic position: Professor of Economics at Politecnico di Milano, where she previously served as associate professor and researcher. Member of the Board of the Department of Industrial Engineering, Management and Economics, and of the Recruiting Committee.

Education: graduated in Economics in 1988 from Bocconi University in Milan (Italy). In 1991 she obtained the Certificate of Advanced Studies in International Economic Policy Research at the Institute of World Economics in Kiel (Germany). In 1994 she obtained the Ph.D. in Economics from Bocconi University, with a final dissertation on the growth effects of international trade.

Research activities: her research focuses on international trade and economic integration between countries and its effects, and on these matters she has published numerous articles on national and international journals. Recent research projects include: Network analysis of International trade: empirical and theoretical models; The economic consequences of the Arab Spring; Financial crisis, global imbalances and monetary policy, Expected trade effects of the TTIP.

Teaching activities: she teaches courses in Economics, International Economics and International Markets and European Institutions in the Bachelor and M.Sc. in Managerial Engineering, and within the Business school and doctoral courses of the Politecnico di Milano. She also teaches classes at the graduate and undergraduate level at Bocconi University and Sant'Anna School of Superior Studies, Pisa.

Additional affiliations and other positions: senior research fellow of the Institute for International Political Studies in Milan; Member of the Editorial Board of the Annual Report of the Italian National Institute for Foreign Trade; Member of the Scientific Committee of the European Trade Study Group and Italian Trade Study Group; repeatedly visiting scholar and visiting professor at the Ford School of Public Policy, University of Michigan, and at various European institutions.